The Marly

HONGKONG, MARCH 20TH, 1875.

Some of the decrees lately published in the Pelcing Gazette have been distinguished by greater liberality and more good sense than the Imperial Government of China has of old been wont to display. The other day we noticed that one had been issued by the two Empresses which wound up with an exhortation to the Ministers " to give up all the bad hubits and traditions of the past for the sake of progress;" we now have another decree before us which seems to give encouragement to a progressive policy. A memorial has been presented, it appears, to the authorities, re- mind was whether he abould direct prisoner in Tientain, having, as Secretary of Legation questing that the ancient interdict upon the to be flogged, but considering that he had ut- resided here several weeks when, in 1861, the cultivation of lands in the interior of Formosa be removed. He thought he if any shareholders wished any further informato throw open the interior, "it is eminently necessary that cultivation of the lands lying waste should be encouraged, and the existing institutions should be modified in consonance with the requirements of the present courage in future. time. The removal of all prohibitions heretofore in force, restricting Chinese subjects from grossing over to Formosa, is hereby granted, and the interdist upon trade in iron and bamboos is at the same time rescinded, with the object of affording encouragement. Let the proper Board take note." This sounds very well, and would be altogether gratifying were it not for that little sentence at the end. The question is, will the "proper Board" take note: or, if it takes note, will it obey? There is so much evesion, and so much double-dealing | that he stole the wood. among Chinese officials that it is possible this excellent decree may for some time be made of none effect. But it is at least a point gained that the Imperial Government begins to see what its duty in regard to this large of his master. and important island really is. It may have been in some degree moved thereto by the comments of the press. It is to be hoped officials have made a " note of" some hints given on this subject. At all events, they are now inclined to drop the old do-nothing policy, which neither concillated nor repressed the was fined $5. aborigines, and kept back the private enterprise of Chinese merchants and traders. Mr. Inquis appears in Court and said the amount of wages claimed was quite correct, but stated that plaintiff, who had been employed on the steam launch, had gone away without a moment's notice, and moreover had never applied for his wages. Plaintiff alleged that he was told by one of the firm to go, but an this was subsequently shown to be correct, Mr. Justice Snowben gave the coolie the 39 he chaimed, refusing only to allow him the additional 90 cents and out that the firm had before on several occasions been seriously inconvenienced by similar conduct on the part of others in their | give employ. His LORDSHIP said that if the coolie had been a domestic servant he could have dealt with him differently, but as he was not, the only remedy Mr. Inquis might Excellency Ying Han, the new Governor-Gohave would be by taking out a summons at | neral of Canton, and suite, passed through this the magistracy. Mr. Inorns, from whom the wages were never asked, is brought to the Summary Court on a summons, is compelled, it may be, to lose a day, and has to pay a coolie practically the full amount due him, because he took it into his head one morning to leave his work without notice. His Lordente characterised the practice as an abominable one, but could not say whether Mr. Inclus would find his remedy at Tientein; and it concludes by saying that if at the Police Court or not. The entire distance from the Cabral mansion to the nearest milroad station, something less than a quarter of a mile, was literally a way of flowers not under foot, but in graceful arches overbead. Thus a long, snow-white bower, ashioned entirely of roses, was the connecting link between the drawing-room and drawingroom car. The demand made on Flore for the materials for this picturesque way was unprecedented. The flower bill for the weddingexclusive of the item of hand-bouquetsamounted to $50,000. But the strangest thing in regard to this bewer I have yet to tell. Its floor for the entire length was covered with camel's heir shawls, to my own mind a piece of preposterous, aye, wicked extravagance. But the father of the bride declared that so long as it was his only daughter and only child whose marriage he was celebrating, he would send ber out of her home to the steam carriage that was to carry her away from him, over a pavement not likely to be imitsted in the future history of marriage in South America. The callow engle in its downy nest, Betwirt the blue above and blue beneath, Or wrapp'd in swirling cloud or misty wreath, Drope its weak wings and folds itself to rest. But hardly is it settled ere its breast Is pierced with auguish, which, in face of death, Drives it to mount on the unquiet breath

Of viewless winds upon an unknown quest. Thou art a collow eagle, O my soul i Forth driven from the home of thy content. And made to stretch towards some distant goal Of glory, on thine upward journey sent. By warning of the Spirit, ere the whole Frame of thy trust from under thee be rent,

Free Spirit striving in my human breast! I see thine image when above her young The parent eagle, hovering, has flung Her shadow itwist the sunshine and her nest. I see thee dark, but know thy glaming creat Burns in the daybreak, and I have no tongue To speak a joy no heart hath fitly sung. The awful joy of thy divine norest.

O mighty blades of shadow-apreading wings Unfurl'd above me ! Will ye bear me up When I, in mounting with ye t'wards the springs Of light, from lack of strength or faith shall drop? Will ye not leave me till in loftier rings Of flight t'words God I need no earthlier prop? EMILY PROPERTY.

SNAIL EATING.

Snail-eating has been in vogue in Italy for many centuries. In Pliny's time Barbary squils stood first in repute, those of Sicily pared to GRANT INSUBANCES at Corrent TOOSITIVE GOVERNMENT SECURITY ranking next; and it was the custom to fatten Rates. the creatures for the table by dieting them upon meal and new wine, with such success. if we dare believe Varro, that some of their shells would hold ten quarts of liquor. so that they must have rivalled the Brobdig. nagian snail over whose shell poor Gulliver broke his shin. In modern Rome freshgathered spails are hawked by women from door to door, for the benefit of good housewives, who boil them in their shells, stew them, or fry them in oil. An Englishman strolling about Palermo came upon some people gathered round a number of baskets filled with what, at first eight, he took to be white publics. Upon nearer acquaintance the probles proved to be snails, waiting to be thrown into a large iron pot standing over a fire made between four stones, and boiled with herbs and tomatoes, for retailing to the expectant crowd. Dining afterwards with a Sicilian gentleman, he was invited to partake of some snails treated in this way, and, for politeness sake, forced himself to swallow a couple of them, although he found it impossible to feign the delight with which his host and his daughter sucked the molluscs out of their shells. - Chambers's Journal.

Diamonds are cut and polished only by their own dust or powder—an art known from remote antiquity in the East, but introduced into Europe only about the end of the fifteenth century, and now centred principally in Amsterdam. They are out chiefly into two forms-rese and Frilliant; the latter having the finest effect, but requiring a greater sacrifice of bulk, some crystals being reduced nearly one half in weight by the operation. When washed from the matrix, the diamonds occur in all sizes, from mere points to one or two hundred carats (of 31-6th grains each) in weight, larger crystals being extremely rare and often apocryphal. The largest and finest diamonds have hitherto been found in India; the largest amount perhaps 800 or 1000 lb. a-year—has been produced from Brazil; but a greater proportion of large stones to small ones has recent

If the tea is desired to be of good flavour, be careful not to make it in a teapot which has been long out of use, without having previously washed it out with boiling water. This is done to remove any slight mouldiness which might be present in the vessel without being observed, and which would impart a disagreeable taste to the tea when made. Always keep the tea in a proper canister, protected from the atmosphere and from damp, otherwise it will lose the pleasant scent peculiar to good tea, and when used, gives the beverage an unpleasant flavour. For this OHINA, JAPAN, the PHILIPPINES, and reason be tary careful, if possible, never to the STRAITS. purchase tea which has a musty odour, even in the slightest degree, or which does not possess that agreeable scent so characteristic of tea in good condition, but which is so quickly lost by exposure to damp. In making tea, always fill up the teapot at once. By this means the whole of the theine which is the vegetable principle on which the peculiar effects produced by tea depends is extracted at once. This will be found much superior to the plan sometimes adopted of first wetting the tea with a small quantity of hot water, and then allowing it to stand in London, or at the principal ports of India before filling up the teapot. For the purpose | Australia, and the East. of extracting the whole of the theine, the water should be allowed to remain in the ter THIRD PER CENT, will be allowed on all LOCAL for at least ten minutes before pouring it out. THE SWEAT OF THE BROW The sweat of the brow is not only our weird, in old Scotch parlance, which the most thoughtless and light-hearted of us must dree in spite of ourselves, it is also the test of the value or valuelessness of our work. Whatever is accomplished in the sweat of the brow is never entirely and in all senses worthless. It may be work undertaken in a mistaken conception and carried on under false lights. its outward development may have no real merit and may perish justly and of necessity, but the earnestness which is involved in the sweat of the brow cannot have been called forth without certain and lasting profit, were it only in removing scales costly lesson. The worker in the sweat or his brow may be foiled outwardly, but inwardly, whether he know it or not, in the sustained energy, however misdirected, of his OOMMERCIAL UNION ASSURANCE effort, in the perseverance and endurance he has learnt to practise, he has his reward. He is stronger wiser, richer in those qualities which secure whether success. I do not by any means grow that the outward success FIRE to the extent of £10,000 on Buildings, or will follow without fail : but in so much as the man is greater and of more moment than his work, he has had the greater gain, even cent. in what may have seemed to him at first an utter loss. And with regard to the work that has not failed outwardly. I imagine LIVERPOOL AND BONDON AND GLOBE either that it has been built up to last, its mortar daubed with the precious sweat of the brow, or that, however fair and grand in appearance, it is but a baseless crambling structure after all, without either foundation or corner-stone, untrue in its lines, incorrect in its aims, and only avaiting a summary. discreditable end -- Sunday Magazine:
